In the course of its life it has given us that little fallen Democratic angel Van Buren, the original squatter sovereign Cass, whose fate is ominous to squatter sovereigns, and that galaxy of gems of of purest ray serene-Polk, Pierce and Buchanan. One of these is dead but it is hard to tell which. All are equally of blessed memory among the people. These fruits some of them over-ripe-of the Convention system, have endeared it to the Demecratic party. All these it survived, therefore the system was naturally looked upon as one of the eternal principles of the party perhaps we might say the eternal principle as numeration has recently but a limited scope in Democratic principles. But when the time came that one side of the party would nominate the candidate, and the other side had to do the electing, and especially when the eternal fitness of things became so misfitted that the party North would have the nomination, and the party South mus elect it; then it was time for the final dissolution of things, and it came.

Perhaps the system might have been saved if an equitable way had been made for giving sound Democratic States the control of the nomination, by modifying the two-thirds rule so as to require a vote of two-thirds of the reliable Democratic States to constitute the nomination. This was proposed by the Charleston Mercury and some other conservative Democratic papers, some time ago. But it was not demanded at the Convention, probably because, as the reliable Democratic States were Southern, the South felt a natural delicacy in asking for a rule which would result so directly in their favor. This may be very creditable to their heads and hearts, but delicacy should not be allowed to interfere with the safety of the country. " Duty before decency," as the boatswain observed to the ship's boy when he stopped to put or his trowsers after he was called.

Whether the party can exist without Naional Conventions, is a question to be asked. Its existence began with them, and submission to their action has always been regarded as the cardinal principle of the party. If the system is really defunct, it should be preserved as a sacred relic; and its past virtues-Van Buren, Cass, Polk, Pierce, and Buchanan, should be enshrined with it. It is no matter how soon, nor which one is niched first. They are all equally ripe.

But, amid the wreck of parties and crush of conventions, it is consoling to see all the candidates turning to Providence for aid. Mr. Douglas, when called out to respond to the nomination, put his case in the hands of Divine Providence. When Todd, at the Convention, announced the nomination of Douglas, he devoutly said: "May God in His in finite mercy protect him and the Union he The other candidates have all submitted their claims to Providence, and as the whole case has thus been appealed to a higher tribunal, we can see no use for agitating it here, and we shall look upon those as lacking faith who attempt to forestall the decision of Providence by electioneering machinery.

The Favorite Heavily Handicapped. The organs of public opinion are pleased t give liberal praise to John Sherman, and to predict great things of his future career. Mr. Sherman has the elements for a successful political career, and the position accorded to him in the House was flattering to him; but the policy of which his position made him the leader, can not be called a success, even the policy of which his position made him the leader, can not be called a success, even the property of the policy of which his position made him the leader, can not be called a success, even the policy of which his position made him the condition we are placed in, and you may as well come to your senses and face the mission. predict great things of his future career. Mr. by his friends. He permitted the same scale of extravagance in appropriations to be continued, without securing any measures for revenue to meet the deficiency; while he permitted the new tariff bill to be manipulated by Eastern manufacturers into a bill of protective abominations, that would have been disastrous to the great interests of the country if it had become alaw. In short, as Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, who is recognized as leader of the House, he permitted a scale of appropriations that made a deficiency inevitable, and he allowed features to be put in the revenue bill that justified the Democracy in defeating it. A tariff bill equitably adjusted solely with a view to making up the deficiency in revenue, would incidentally have furnished all the protection that any reasonable person could ask; certainly all that any party who expected stability in such a measure would desire Such a bill would have furnished no obnoxious points for Democratic attack, and if lost would have made that party responsible for running the government in debt in time of

The result of his first demonstration as leader is not a success, and it would be well for a man who has so promising a future, and whom the public are disposed to regard to favorably, to profit by this experience, and to reflect whether it is wise to clog his crreer with protective theories which have brought a failure on his first essay at statesmanship A rising man might as well put a mill-stone about his neck as load his course with these doctrines, which are utterly false in principle, inconsistent with themselves, and which have been thoroughly tried before the people and totally defeated, as they always will be whenever the issue is fairly made.

Our Horse-Marine Victories.
The United States -District Court, at New Orleans, has pronounced the seizure of the Mexican steamers under Marin, at Vers Cruz, illegal: Thus the Government has been robbed of another great naval victory. Thus the laurels on which Mr. Buchanan oped to retire, are turned to thorns. Greytown, Paraguay, San Juan and Vera Cruz-all our glorious victories come back to plague the victors. Now the only way we can make it right with Marin, will be to pension the families of the killed and wounded, repair their tendency to expedients for immediate uccess, overlooking great fundamental prin ciples, on which only permanent success can Mr. Gaulden, the leader of the Georgia Doug-las delegation in the Baltimore Convention, Gaulden made a speech at that Convention, defining popular sovereignty as he understood it, which excited much enthusiasm We quote some of the gems from Gaulden, believing it to be the only hope for our free "I say that our friends in Georgia, who are "I say that our friends in Georgia, who are crying out for protection to slavery in the Territories, are advocating a mere abstraction, a thing that is not and can not be. They would do much better if they would demand protection from the General Government and have a line of police established along the border of the slave States to catch and hang the thicking Abalitoniets who are stealing the thieving Abolitionists who are stealing our niggers. [Laughter and applause.] This is a means of protection. Why? Because it is practical. [Renewed laughter and appremising that he first announced himself a

Gaulden is a firm non-interventionist in the Territories, but he comes out so strong for Congressional protection in the States that his territorial heresy might almost be forgiven. It is a relief to find that the popular sovereignty heresy is limited entirely to the Territories, where we have faith enough in Providence to believe that the Supreme Court will soon crush it out.

But we return to Gaulden "Here is my old native State of Virginia— the slave-trading and slave-breeding State of virginia." (Laughter.)

"Delegate from Virginia—I call the gentleman to order. He casts an imputation upon Virginia by calling her the "slave-breeding State of Virginia."

We suspect that delegate from Virginia vas some Abolitionist in disguise. He affects to regard the most suitable and profitable imployment of the chivalry as an imputation on the State; very likely he regards the annual export of twenty thousand negroes from Virginia as her shame. A mild Virginia argument of tar and feathers might have brought that delegate to reason.

But, to this, thus Gaulden: "Mr. Gaulden—Well, I will say the siave-breeding State of Georgia, then. I glory in being a slave-breeder myself. [Loud laughter.] I will face the music myself, and I have got as many negroes as any man from the State of Virginia. And as I invited the gentlemen of this Convention at Charleston to visit my plantation. I will say again that if they will plantation, I will say again that, if they will come to see me, I will show them as fine a lot of negroes, and the pure African, too, as they can find any where. And I will show them as handsome a set of little children there as as handsome a set of little children there as can be seen [laughter], and any quantity of them, too. [Renewed laughter.] And I wish that Virginia may be as good a slave-trading and slave-breeding State as Georgia; and in saying that I do not mean to be disrespectful to Virginia, but I do not mean to dodge the question at all.

That envious performance of the mother o the Gracchi was feeble, compared with the noble pride of Gaulden over his ebony jewels. Gaulden is taken by the spirit, and

"And now, while I am up, I want to put y veto upon one thing. I know that I am or going to be applauded in what I say; but ed sown in good time will bring forth fruit; seed sown in good time will bring forth fruit; and though you may say now that I am wrong, yet I think I shall live to see the day when the doctrines which I advocate to-night will be the doctrines of Massachusetts and of the North, for Truth croshed to earth will rise again; The eternal years of fied are hers; While error, wounded, writhes in pain, And dies simid her worshipers.

The poetical quotation is somewhat worn, ut was never so aptly applied.

But Gaulden is well grounded on a logical rinciple. He can not see why popular sovereignty should not be amphibious; why, if it is an eternal principle on land, it should die on the water. We are obliged to clip Gaulden, for he soars beyond our limits, but we will leave him in an impregnable position, and would like to see the popular sovereignty men dislodge him from it:

men dislodge him from it:

"Isay Igofor non-intervention in the broadest sense of the term. I say that this whole thing should be taken out of the hands of the General Government. I say it is all wrong to be spending two or three millions of dollars annually from our pockets, and sacrificing thousands of lives upon the coast of Africa in that terrible clime, to prevent our going there to get a few negroes. If it is Popular Sovereignty Administered by the Constituted Authorities.

It is expected that those favorable to the election of Breckinridge and Lane, and who would preserve the Union by maintaining the integrity of each and every department of the Government, will soon hold a ratification meeting in this city, under the auspices of the Administration officers, which will show that the Democracy of Hamilton County have not all bowed the knee to the squatter sovereignty Baal. We shall not be surprised if it throws the Douglas efforts entirely in the shade.

The Ways of Municipal Repudiation. The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania met on the 27th, to act upon the writ of attachment for contempt on the part of the authorities of Alleghany County and the City Council of Pittsburg for refusing to levy the tax to pay interest on the county and city railroad debt. Thirteen Councilmen answered and were adjudged guilty of contempt and held in the sum of $1,000 to answer at the fall term of the Court at Pittsburg. Attachments were issued for the other members, and all the Councilmen will be brought before the Supreme Court next fall.

A JUST BUT UNGALLANT DEFINITION.—
Punch says: "A married philosopher, whose views respecting nursery-management, fashious, domestic economy, and minor morals, have long experienced a steady opposition, describes the reflective and analytical intellect as "That divine faculty of reason which distinguishes man from woman."

THE WARRINGTON CONSTITUTION IN APPLICATION.—A Washington dispatch states that the Constitution newspaper will hoist the names of Breckinridge and Lane. Another telegram says: "It is now reported that the Constitution will be stopped on Saturday or Monday, in consequence of the reduction in the price of printing."

PREN MASONRY IN JAPAN.—The New York Disputch says that two of the Japanese Embassadors are members of the Masonic Order, and that Masonry exists in the Japanese Empire to a considerable extent. If this be so, an examination of the subject might lead to the establishment of the antiquity of the order, and give us new light as to its remote history.

[In consequence of the interruption of the lines in New York State we are without outsual Eastern dispatches to-night.—Rer.]

New Haves, June 29,—A strange development has just been made in regard to the whereabouts of E. L. Deforest, who was missed from the Metropolitan Hotel, N. Y., on the 17th of January, 1857, and who was supposed to have been murdered. A letter was received this morning by the Cashier of the New Haven Bank, signed by Deforest, and dated Melbourne, April 15, 1860, inquiring after his back dividends, which he says he has not drawn for some time past. He adds that he has given the power of attorney adds that he has given the power of attorney to Messrs. Maylor, Lord & Queereau, Wall-street, New York, to enable them to receive his dividends. He also asks a statement of the amount so paid, and the price of the stock at the latest sales. A careful compari-son of the letter with others of his manu-scripts shows a striking resemblance throughout, and no doubt is expressed of the gen-uineness of the letter. It comes by way o

Political Matters.
Columbus, June 29.—The Breckinridge ar Lane ratification meeting being held here to-night is large and enthusiastic. A salute of thirty-three guns was fired. Specches were made by William A. Neil, General Andrews and others, ,

A Young Woman Brutally Outraged by Negroes.—While a Miss Martin, who lives near the Kentucky River, and about eight miles from Winchester, was driving up the cows to the house of her family, she was caught by two negro men, who, threatening her life if she made an effort to cry out for assistance, dashed her to the ground and brutally violated her person. Miss Martin is represented as quite good looking, and only sixteen years of age; and although poor, she was respected by all who knew her. Circumstantial evidence is very strong against two men belonging to Mr. Benjamin Dykes, who resides near where the outrage was perpetrated, and they have been apprehended and lodged in the jail at Winchester. A difficulty occurred here to-day between a man named Hull and a citizen named Holcomb, in which Holcomb shot Hull dead. Eugene Leonart & Murain, of this place, was also shot this morning by a man named Duhanse, a Frenchman, from El Paso, in a dispute growing out of some business transaction. Dr. McKee, of Fort Fillmore, was soon in attendance, and is of the opinion that the wound is not mortal.

THE KIND OF MEN WOMEN ADMIRE .- Mer THE KIND OF MEN WOMEN ADMINE.—Men who are really the most fond of women—who cherish them for the truest respect—are the least popular with the sex. Men of great assurance, whose tongues are lightly hung, who make words to supply the place of ideas, and place compliments in the room of sentiments, are the favorites. A due respect for woman leads to respectful action toward them, and respect is mistaken by them for neglect or want of love.

THE PRESENT COMET.-The Cambridge as tronemors say the comet is approaching the earth, though owing to the strong moon-light its low position and its increasing dis-tance from the sun, it is doubtful whether i will become very conspicuous to the naked cye.
